

March 22, 2017

APSA Endorsement of the March for Science

The American Political Science Association strongly endorses the upcoming March for Science, a nonpartisan event scheduled for April 22, 2017, in Washington, DC, and other locations across the globe. The March “champions robustly funded and publicly communicated science as a pillar of human freedom and prosperity” and calls on leaders “to enact evidence-based policies in the public interest.” The APSA enthusiastically supports the mission of the March and reiterates its commitment to research and teaching in political science and more broadly in the social sciences, sciences, and humanities.

The APSA is a scholarly association that represents more than 13,000 U.S. and internationally based professors and students of political science. The APSA works to promote scholarly understanding of political ideas, norms, behaviors, and institutions, in order to inform public choices about government, governance, and public policy.

###

Founded in 1903, the American Political Science Association is the leading professional organization for the study of political science and serves more than 13,000 members in more than 80 countries. With a range of programs and services for individuals, departments, and institutions, APSA brings together political scientists from all fields of inquiry, regions, and occupational endeavors within and outside academe to deepen our understanding of politics, democracy, and citizenship throughout the world.